

Vision and Mission

Since 225 years Royal Dutch Kentalis is specializing in providing diagnostic, care and educational services to people who are deaf, hard of hearing or deafblind, as well as to people with severe speech and language impairment or an autistic spectrum disorder accompanied by severe speech and language difficulties or cognitive developmental delay.

Kentalis believes that every person should have his/her right to education and care attained, regardless of disability or any other factor. Therefore we exchange our knowledge worldwide with the aim to enabling children and adults with hearing or communication difficulties to participate in society and achieve their full potential. Hereto we support and/or cooperate with organizations who provide or improve accessibility to language, communication and information.

*In line with the UNCRPD we:

...recognise that persons with disabilities have a right to full and equal participation in education and in their communities.

Therefore we aim to contribute to the training of teachers and/or other professional staff in the appropriate teaching methods and techniques, including the option of Sign Language, tactile communication, sign supported speech and visualization techniques etc.. We do this in order to ensure that education can be delivered in the most appropriate languages and modes and means of communication for the individual and in an environment which maximizes academic and social development (UNCRPD art.24.3).

...recognise that persons with disabilities have the right to live independently and participate fully in all aspects of life, for which access to information is crucial.

Therefore we aim to contribute to the successful use of hearing aids and hearing implants by training relevant people in the medical and/or educational sector in areas such as (early) screening and diagnostics, (early) rehabilitation, classroom acoustics and educational audiology. Furthermore we promote professional training and availability of Sign Language interpreters, including those trained on using tactile communication and interpreting for persons who are deafblind and other appropriate forms of assistance. (UNCRPD art.9).

...recognise that people with disabilities have the right to be included in decision making and programmes that concern them.

Therefore we aim to include the relevant DPOs (representative organisations or groups of persons with disabilities) in all stages of our programmes to the best of our abilities (UNCRPD preamble.(o)).

...recognise that persons with disabilities have a right to full and equal participation in cultural life, leisure, recreation and sport.

Therefore we aim to contribute to awareness raising concerning the abilities of persons with disabilities, and the opportunities for bridging communication barriers. Hereto we may offer together with our partners training to hearing persons (professionals and/or parents) on options of communication with persons who are hard of hearing, deaf, deafblind or who have other disabilities that affect communication.

...acknowledge Sign Language and deaf culture as being the cultural and linguistic identity of deaf people (UNCRPD art.30.1 and 30.4). We also acknowledge the freedom of deaf and hard of hearing people to make individual choices and/or have preferences of socio-cultural belonging concerning language and culture.

...contribute - as an organization based in the Netherlands - to the obligation within international development cooperation in investing in capacity-building. Hereto we share information, build networks of professionals, exchange experiences, develop and implement training programmes and learn from each other through best practices; (UNCRPD art.32.b)

We acknowledge that every region and/or country has its own policies, social background, diverse culture and specific challenges. Our intention is to discover together with our partners the right setting for knowledge exchange and adapt the Kentalis expertise accordingly without compromising quality standards. We are open and aim to work with all stakeholders involved in order to achieve the best possible results. For sustainable learning we primarily work through a train-the-trainer principle and aim to embed our programmes in existing structures.
